

He was one of the world's greatest con artists.
Now he works for America.

FRANK ABAGNALE

He successfully posed as an airline pilot, an attorney, a college professor, and a pediatrician. He forged $2.5 million in fraudulent checks in every state and 26 foreign countries.

Caught, jailed, and finally released after agreeing to work with federal agencies – for free – teaching them his secrets and assisting with investigations, Abagnale wrote the best-selling book, “Catch Me If You Can,” which launched a hit title film and Broadway musical. For 30 years, he worked as a key consultant to the FBI.
